

BOOKS CHILDREN SHOULD NOT READ

Miss Clara W. Herbert, Librarian, Gives Lecture on the Subject.

A note of warning to parents against permitting children to read cheap books was sounded yesterday afternoon by Miss Clara W. Herbert, children's librarian of the Public Library, in an address delivered in the lecture room of the Carnegie Library.

Miss Herbert carefully differentiated between cheap books and inexpensive books. By cheap books she had in mind books cheap in literary quality, and many of the stories on up-to-date subjects such as scout stories and airship stories, published hurriedly to meet the interest in these subjects and which are inaccurate, incomplete and unsatisfactory. The best of the world's literature can be purchased in inexpensive editions, but no one would call them cheap books.

In purchasing books for children Miss Herbert advises consideration of the author's name and reputation, the publisher and the make-up of the book.
